

You may want to explore some of these ways science is being communicated:

Creature Cast: The Unexpected World of Biology (<http://creaturecast.org>)

The Story Collider (<http://www.storycollider.org/>)

Science Friday (<http://www.sciencefriday.com/>)

RadioLab (<http://www.radiolab.org/>)

University faculty research blogger who is blogging specifically to communicate to the public:
Kim Cobb (<http://shadow.eas.gatech.edu/~kcobb/>)

ResearchBlogging (<http://researchblogging.org/post-list/list/date/all>)

Science cafes (<http://www.sciencecafes.org/>)

The NeuWrite Project (<http://www.neuwrite.org>)